Cryptocurrency for the World. Distributed locally

Recent technological advancements brought us modern tools such as GPS that enabled the ride sharing and food ordering/delivery economy (Uber, Lyft and Fodora, Uber Eats etc) and life is unthinkable without it. Today we also talk about AI driven cars and flying to Mars in Elon's BFR (Big Falcon Rocket…). But there is one technology that will change forever the way we do banking.

To realize the magnitude of the change that is coming you have to think how the "email" technology changed forever the traditional way of sending letters by what we call today "snail mail". The magic word is "Blockchain technology", and cryptocurrencies are part of the possibilities that Blockchain technology offers us and is one of the most adopted trend related to investment in the last years.

The crypto investors are continuously looking for the new "Bitcoin", the new "Verge", the new "Eos" and so on. The search is going on for a new concept, a new idea or a platform that has a global scope approach and will be in continuous expansion. They are looking for companies that will exceed the limits and be capable to generate a mass adoption and profits. They search for projects that have a clear vision on how to precisely reach their objectives and generate value when compared to the rest of the existing crypto projects.
